

The objects Culin figured

The paper's twenty-two illustrations are not reproduced in the edition and their captions are printed where they stood. Gathered here they are a catalogue of the boards a curator could put his hands on in Philadelphia in 1894, with the provenance he recorded. Culin's wording, exactly.

No photographer and no draughtsman is named for any of them, which is why none is reproduced. The captions carry the provenance, which is the part a reader can act on.
